(That's the rate for Long Distance all weekend long.)

Here are the new Long Distance rates and hours. Clip and keep handy.

	MON.	TUES.	WED.	THURS.	FRI.	SAT.	SUN.
7 a.m.- 5 p.m.						$1.75 OR LESS
5 p.m.- 7 p.m.						$1.25 OR LESS
7 p.m.- 7 a.m.						$1.00 OR LESS
Midnight- 7 a.m.						$.75 OR LESS (ON CALLS YOU DIAL YOURSELF)

*Maximum rates for a 3-minute, station-to-station interstate call, plus tax, anywhere in the continental U.S., except Alaska. The 75¢-or-less rate only applies to station-to-station calls dialed directly from midnight to 7 a.m.

Weekends are family time. And we've made Long Distance rates low all weekend long. The low rate of $1* or less has been in effect all day Sunday. As a result of the latest reduction, it applies all day Saturday, too.

And that's not the only reason Long Distance is a bigger bargain than ever. Now that same $1-or-less rate goes into effect earlier every week-night. Starting at 7 p.m., you can make a 3-minute, station-to-station interstate call anywhere in the continental U.S. (except Alaska) for $1 or less, plus tax. For changes in other rates, please see the chart above.

P.S. Why not call early Christmas weekend and avoid the rush on Christmas Day? The low weekend rate will be in effect Saturday, Sunday and Christmas Day (Monday).

■ Our favorite studio head, comedienne and rich lady came up the other day with a concise and accurate summary of what has happened in network television.

"It doesn't take a lot of courage or sharp judgment," said Lucille Ball, "to put old pictures with big names in the shank of the evening's schedule. They were taking no chances with features that have already proven themselves in theaters. The networks, and the admen, too, who buy for the advertisers, have been wrong so many times [on situation comedies] that they got tired of sticking their necks out and making bad decisions. Many who make the judgments have no background in show business and are not qualified to prejudge shows off the pilot.

■ "The rising costs of production are also partially responsible for the demise of the half-hour show. It makes mistakes costlier and few want to risk the final decision. . . . There's four times less worry in buying a two-hour feature than four half-hour comedies."

With all six of the network movies scoring near the top in ratings, ABC, NBC and CBS are either making or contracting for their own movies, to make certain plenty of product will be available in the future.

■ We don't know yet whether it's good or bad, but our guess is that prime-time television for the next few seasons will be mostly movies, with enough specials and variety shows and sports to provide some balance.

This sort of programming may not take advantage of television's creative potential, but it will remove much of the gamble from the medium and it'll probably satisfy most viewers—even though it's a far cry from what network heads were promising in their speeches a few years ago.

'Ra-a-ay for Ravioli!

More body-building protein than most lunchtime soups or sandwiches.

There's tasty beef in those little pies. And because they're bulging with beef, they have more protein than a plain old peanut butter sandwich or a boiled ham sandwich. Even more than 4 bowls of beef noodle soup. And each serving costs only about 18¢.

But don't tell kids that. They gobble up Chef Boy-Ar-Dee® Ravioli because it's deliciously different. From now on, you don't have to give kids a reason for eating. Just a reason for eating slowly.

Is your dog suffering from positive thigmotaxis?

Hollywood stars take their neurotic pooches to a psychologist (natch)

By Dick Hobson

An NBC executive's Great Dane wouldn't let him into his wife's bedroom.

The house of the late Charles Bickford at one time was a yapping bedlam, as his wife's nine miniature poodles kept scrapping over who was to be top dog.

Joe Flynn's cocker spaniel developed an obsessive preoccupation with "oral behavior," including biting.

Bob Hope's backyard kennels erupted into a fury of canine competitiveness.

Dane, poodles and cocker—as well as Hope's basset hound, toy schnauzer, Lhasa Apso, Maltese and his assorted other breeds—all have now undergone intensive therapy at the Canine Behavior Institute in Brentwood (an upper-tax-bracket neighborhood between Beverly Hills and the sea).

That's where Flynn's cocker was found to have suffered "psychosexual misorientation" in puppyhood. Where they do research on the "barrier frustration syndrome" (that's when your dog tries to work an "open sesame" on the door to bark it open). Or "allelomimetic behavior" (your dog jumps up on his hind legs like his owner). Not to overlook "positive thigmotaxis" (pooch drags you down the street on his lead).

Any number of personalities from the television and entertainment world have trekked to Brentwood, freaked-out bowser in tow, for their 50-minute hours, once a week for six weeks. Fee: $245, plus $45 for brush-up sessions. Director of the institute is Dr. Dare Miller, 40, who has a B.S. from Los Angeles City College and a doctorate in psychology from the College of Philosophy at Kansas City, Mo., and who claims: "I am the only person in the country who practices as a dog psychologist."

Get Smart's Don Adams and wife Dorothy recently brought their new miniature black poodle, Max, to the institute for therapy sessions under the guidance of Dr. Miller's associate, William Campbell, who relates this case history:

"The Adamses' former dog, Brandy, also a miniature black poodle, was run over and killed in front of their house. They got the new dog to replace the old dog, which is a very poor concept to start with. The problem was that Mrs. Adams was trying to reincarnate Brandy in Max. But Max was just a puppy. When he'd escape, Mrs. Adams would scream. Screaming didn't help; he'd only run faster. Once he kept running right across the street and into a fish pond.

"Then, when Max made a mess in Frank Sinatra's suite at the Sands in Vegas, the Adamses rejected him. They thought Max did it because he was mad at them. Actually, it was just a relief of tension. Mrs. Adams is learning to get that insistent tone out of her voice. She's learning to accept Max as an individual. She's beginning to perceive Max as a personality, and a charming personality."

The institute's associates don't regard themselves as "dog trainers," because their treatment is not restricted to the psyche of the dog. It's the relationship between dog and owner that counts. That's why, in Dr. Miller's opinion, Mike Nichols "threw his money away. Instead of coming himself, Mr. Nichols sent his butler to the sessions with the dog. When the dog remained recalcitrant in his relationship with Mr. Nichols, he thought the dog was stupid."

At Bob Hope's house there is no "family dog"; each member of the household has his own dog. Counting Bob's dog, his wife's dog, his four children's dogs, and his resident mother-in-law's dog, it adds up to seven dogs. The problem that brought them all to Dr. Miller comes as no particular surprise. "There was sibling rivalry among the dogs. The jealousies were manifested in the dogs' chewing up one another." Mrs. Hope's gray poodle, Mike, and her mother's Maltese, Gilby, were given the run of the house. All the others were "in jail"—relegated to the kennels out back, where Bob's basset, Recesson, bit out the eye of young Kelly Hope's Lhasa Apso, Coco. Of his Hope family-counseling sessions Dr. Miller comments wryly, "It was hopeless."

Tony Franciosa's beagle came down with "postman syndrome." In this affliction the dog's mind is preoccupied with territorial defense. When each day the dog barks as the postman delivers and departs, the dog thinks he has successfully turned away an invader. He becomes proud of his "achievement." It took the full course plus two brush-up sessions to dispel Tony's beagle of this delusion. Lauren Bacall's beagle also developed "postman syndrome" but overcame it in the regular six sessions.

To ensure that his tricolored collie "had the proper education and would then be able to communicate with him," Gov. Ronald Reagan called in the dog psychologist. "We advised Mr.

Reagan on toilet training," Dr. Miller recalls. His theory as explained to the Governor runs like this: "The dog who indulges in the sort of wetting where he lifts his leg against the corner of furniture, doorways and drapes is an insecure dog who finds it necessary to try to own or control his environment by wetting on it. He is a selfish, narcissistic animal, so self-oriented that he wets on everything to make it more his own."

Teddy, Anne and Kirk Douglas's small apricot poodle, exhibited "terribly regressive" characteristics such as cowering, shivering, shaking, piddling and crawling under the bed. "It is surprising in our dogs' lives how many times they are 'wrong,'" →

Dr. Miller with a patient.

Dr. Miller observes. "This is not good for the emotional development of the dog. He should be made to feel that he is right a strong percentage of the time. He needs to feel that he is 'in' and accepted by the group."

The grown-up children of a retired widower, a former wardrobe-department head at a major studio, came to the dog psychologist for help. On Father's Day they had given their father a cairn terrier. The problem dog immediately appropriated their mother's favorite chair or stood around in the kitchen where their mother used to stand. Their father, to their chagrin, named the dog Ellen, after his deceased wife. In this case, Dr. Miller declined to intercede. "I thought it set the old man up great," he says.

One of Dr. Miller's recent patients was a prominent TV producer's dog who suffered from "pica"—the ingestion of stones, hairpins, matchbooks and other foreign particles—in this instance, folding money. The producer found the corner of a $20 bill, lit into the dog and beat it. "The producer type finds it hard to accept reality," according to Dr. Miller. "This producer thought the dog did it to spite him. Not true. In the dog's mind, what's the difference between chewing Kleenex and chewing paper money? The producer cared nothing about the dog until the incident of the $20 bill. Now he has acquired more of a reality appreciation."

Another television executive, in this case a network lawyer, brought his dog in for therapy because the dog had chewed up his trifocals. "This lawyer was constantly taking them off to talk to you, waving them around. In the absence of his owner the dog was drawn to the glasses because of his owner's personal smell and touch. It was to assuage his hurt feelings and sense of loss."

In his manual, "The Secret of Canine Communication," Dr. Miller explained the etiology, or causative factors, as follows: "Many dogs seek to regain the security they felt nursing at their mother's nipples by chewing. . . . The dog seeks out some personal article of the owner's—eyeglasses, sweaters, even television knobs—something the owner has handled recently. Some dogs even take the telephone off the hook. Whatever the object, the dog takes out his frustration by chewing it to destruction. He does this not to get even with the owner but to make up for the lack of his owner's presence. Dogs that chew a lot are insecure."

An incidental facet of chewing, Dr. Miller warns, is this: "Never grab things out of a dog's mouth. It makes him want that object all the more. It creates the worst kind of chewing and can make for a grabby dog."

Dr. Miller expresses himself in a potpourri of jargon drawn from various schools of depth psychology, including liberal borrowings from Freud. But when it comes to practicalities—actually changing canine behavior—he turns out to be strictly from Pavlov, a whole other cat. If you ring a bell every time a dog is fed, Pavlov discovered, soon his saliva will start to flow at the sound of the bell alone. Dr. Miller's therapeutics are grounded in this single basic principle.

He invented and patented a metal chain incorporating a tuning fork that, when shaken or tossed, vibrates at 34,200 cycles per second, a sound mostly beyond the range of the human ear but so attention-compelling to the dog that he quickly unlearns unwanted acts and learns to obey commands associated with the sound. In a short time the chain (or "Hi-FiDo," as Dr. Miller calls it) may be permanently discarded as the dog becomes lastingly conditioned.

And that, in sum and substance, is the story of how the NBC executive paid $245 to get back into his wife's bedroom.

BEHIND THE BLUSTERY BOMBAST

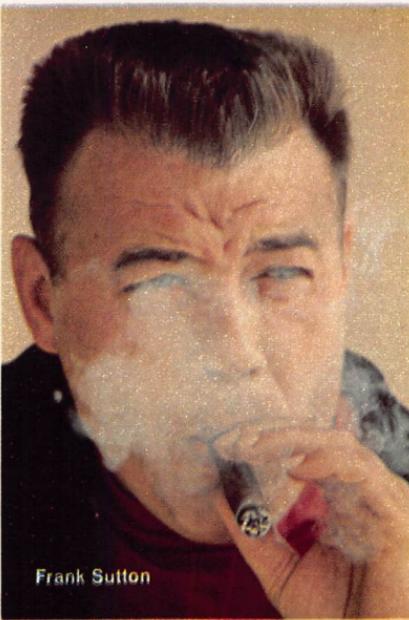

...of TV's toughest top kick, you find a surprisingly sensitive man

The accomplished actor who plays Gomer Pyle's bombastic top kick is in his element. "Playing Sergeant Carter is a gas! He's larcenous, jealous, egocentric. Yet when the time comes to do a brutal or sadistic thing, he cops out; he can't do it."

Actor Frank Sutton, now 44, who was himself an Army buck sergeant in World War II, and who took part in 14 assault landings at such place names as Leyte, Luzon, Bataan and Corregidor, never had a brutal bone in his body.

He couldn't be any other way; that's how he was brought up in the country towns of Kentucky and Tennessee, where his father was a tempestuous newspaper printer forever on the move. "My father had a temper. He'd have a row with a managing editor, so we'd move on." But the elder Sutton taught young Frank never to run from a fight. "If I'd run into the house all out of breath with some bully chasing me down the street, my father would force me to go out and fight the kid. Dad would referee."

One of Frank's consuming preoccupations has been raising his own son, Joey, now 13, to be not a bully and not a sissy but "all boy," able to take care of himself like a man. This contrasts with Frank's detestation of violence. "Somebody gave Joey a Tommy gun for his third birthday. I wouldn't allow it. Guns, violence and war are evil and horrible. I didn't want my kid to be hostile. Then Joey got himself clobbered and didn't want to go back to the playground any more. So I went out and bought two pairs of boxing gloves and for two days I tried to teach him to hit me. I was shouting: 'Hit me! Don't tap me! Hurt me! Hit me with all your might!' He was 3."

Another time, when Joey was 9 and in the fourth grade, he ran home out of breath and told his father that a young tormentor threatened to break his fingers with a judo chop. "So we enrolled in a judo class together. Joey learned how to hit and how to take a fall. And I taught him the Marine Corps thing: Don't be afraid of being hit. So after six weeks he went back and clobbered the bully. I didn't go with him like my father used to go with me. I never forced Joey to face a battle. Afterwards, when I asked if he had been scared, he said, 'Yes, sir.' He calls me 'sir.' Today he's very aggressive in sports but otherwise gentle. I always wanted him to be a pacifist. I think I've succeeded in what I wanted."

Frank Sutton is far from pacifistic on the subject of the Vietnam war. During last year's series hiatus he financed his own trip over there and back. He put on 56 shows in eight days for Marine Corps units. "My identification was with the young, healthy guys fighting. I wanted to be a part of it. I know what it means to die in a rice paddy with the stink and the filth. I saw boys all shot up. I saw a quadruple amputee and blind. When I got back everybody put me down. You'd think I was practically a Nazi. I am surrounded by dovish people in my business."

The business of playing Sergeant Carter sounds strenuous. "I've never worked so hard in my life. There's no such thing as a day off. You see more of your co-star than your wife. We can never go out at night. On weekends I have to study my script. My little girl, Mandy, who is 3, starts crying if she wakes up and sees me in the middle of the night. I'm a strange man in my own house. My wife, Toby, tells her, 'That's Uncle Daddy.' It's a big price to pay.

"But I've had a lot of fun doing Sergeant Carter. At first he was a blank and the writers were making a brutal s.o.b. out of him. As an actor, I like doing characters that are real people. I want Carter to have a whole real life instead of just getting into embarrassing comic situations. I started writing his biography on the last page of the scripts. I made him a high school dropout; the whole thing bored him, not enough action. The war's on in Korea; bam!—he volunteers. Carter has a mother; an allotment goes out. He lost his father; I'm inventing that now."

What of "this strange relationship," as executive producer Sheldon Leonard terms it, between Carter and Gomer Pyle? "Carter sees something of himself in Gomer; Gomer only sees the good parts of Carter. Gomer is all good. I worry about leaning too heavily on him. Yet when I go on a real Marine base the privates always come up to me and say, 'Why don't you deck him?'"

Though he plays a Marine on Gomer Pyle, USMC, he couldn't pass the Corps physical when he tried to enlist in World War II, and he wound up in the Army. "The reason I was never a Marine is because I am color-blind."

One thing that impressed Sutton on his Vietnam trek was the lack of racial prejudice he encountered. "I can remember when everybody with dark skin was called a 'Gook.' I never once heard a word putting the South Vietnamese down." It is a subject of particular interest to Frank. "All my forebears fought for the Confederacy and some were POW's in Federal prisons. But my father was a liberal man. As a small boy I once used the word 'nigger' to a delivery boy and my father let me know I was not to use that word again. Then in the South Pacific I became friends with a Negro sergeant who was more skilled and better educated than me. When I got back home I began to see the tremendous overt injustices that existed. The subtle ones I didn't really get to understand until later at Columbia University, when I got to know Negro students who were not equal but better." (Sutton was graduated cum laude.)

And all of this adds up to the surprising, complex man you find when you look behind the simple, two-dimensional, blustery bombast of Sgt. Vince Carter, USMC.

For One Night Only

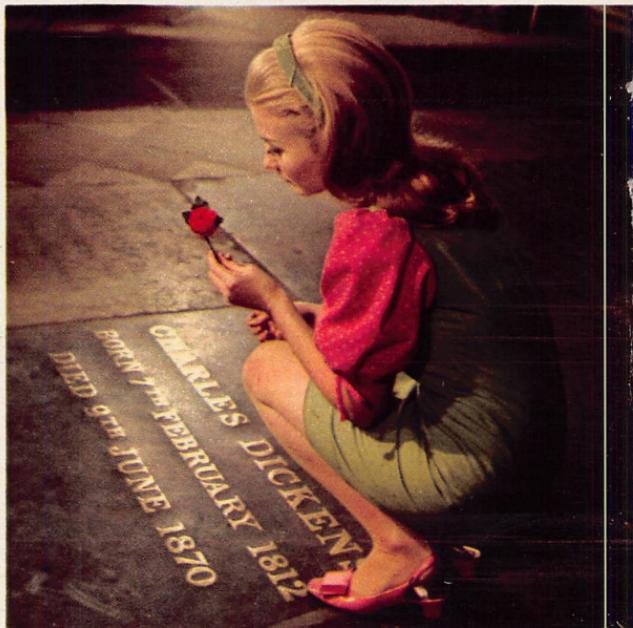

DICKENS RETURNS TO LONDON

"Old Marley was dead." And so, too, is Charles Dickens. As dead as the London he so successfully chronicled. Which is to say not really dead at all. His ghost will return in an ABC special (Dec. 12) called "Mr. Dickens of London." In it, Mr. Dickens (Sir Michael Redgrave) will give us a tour of the London of his time. With him will be Juliet Mills (sister to Hayley and daughter of John). Typical of the scenes is the one at left, with Sir Michael (foreground) acting out a segment of the Dickens Christmas tale "Seven Poor Travellers." (It was shot at Richard Watts' Charity House, Rochester, England.) Another →

The President Considers TV Plan

President Johnson again is reported in a mood to sit still for a live, three-network "Conversation" with TV newsmen. A January date is being discussed, since he cannot much longer rate as a noncandidate under TV's equal-time rules. The likely interviewers are ABC's Howard K. Smith or Bill Lawrence, CBS's Eric Sevareid and NBC's David Brinkley. Informed sources say the President has long hankered to engage in a prime-time interview like the one he gave on March 15, 1964, but has always shied from it when reminded that the newsmen would insist upon unrestricted questioning. At the same time he has been aware that many felt he projected a better TV image in that '64 appearance than he had achieved any time up to the moment of his free-swinging TV press conference. It is felt that more of those also are in the offing.

Vice President Humphrey, it turns out, was standing in for his boss last Oct. 18 in a sneak-preview of a TV format which President Johnson is likely to employ in next year's election campaign. Titled "The People Question Vice President Humphrey," the hour-long NET program subjected Humphrey to quizzing by citizen groups in Los Angeles, Milwaukee, Philadelphia and Athens, Ga. According to a reliable source, the President was pleased with the way the program played and has put it down as a technique he might employ in '68, possibly in paid political broadcasts in TV prime time.

The two most heatedly debated features of the Public Broadcast Laboratory's premiere on Nov. 5 were an all-Negro whiteface satire, "Day of Absence," and two "anti-commercials" knocking TV's sales pitches for aspirin and long cigarettes. Since then both drama and pseudo-plugs have been little in evidence on the telecast. A plan occasionally to devote the entire two hour show to drama apparently has been sidetracked, at least until a movus vivendi is worked out between the PBL's bit-in-mouth producers and their august "editorial advisory" board, which had tried to veto "Day of Absence." As for the commercial swipes, a PBL spokesman reported "several" new ones are planned, one kidding auto sales pitches. Might it point the finger at Ford? (PBL is financed by a $10 million Ford Foundation grant.) "I don't see why not!" the PBLer huffed.

More than one "Making of the President" is in prospect next year. Author Theodore H. White will turn out another book and TV documentary on the Presidential campaign. But there also will be a "Making of the President, 1789." ABC staff producer Hubbell Robinson is readying a one-hour special re-enacting George Washington's election. "It will point up the parallels with today, such as the widespread criticism of Washington's conduct of the war," Robinson noted.

INCIDENT AT PHANTOM HILL (NBC), Saturday
WELCOME TO HARD TIMES (ABC), Sunday
FLUFFY (NBC), Tuesday
PARTY GIRL (CBS), Thursday
WALL OF NOISE (CBS), Friday

In some areas network movies may not be seen on the days indicated.

We're getting into the movies-to-address - Christmas - cards - by season, with little to demand one's full attention or even the slightly-more-than-partial attention that wrapping packages allows one to give to the little screen.

What with a couple of Westerns on the blood-and-gore rather than cowboys-and-Indians kick, an ersatz gangland drama and a tale of foul doings at the race track, "Fluffy" emerges as the pleasantest item on the agenda. Once again Tony Randall, that most polished of farceurs, is trapped in a farce unworthy of his mettle but he and Shirley Jones manage to provide an aura of comedy-romance to what is really a bit of fluff for the kiddies. "Fluffy," you see, is a 7-year-old lion whom biochemist Randall has made, via tender loving care and experiments, as gentle as a lamb and the fun and games involve convincing folks of his lamblike qualities. "Lamblike" is the word for the film as well.

"Ferocious" is the word for "Welcome to Hard Times," a Western that made the movie-house-to-television transition in well under a year. An ambitious film that bogs down in its own clichés, it bears only fitful resemblance to the Doctorow novel which offered a parable about the nature of evil in the destruction and rebirth of a town. Aldo Ray, as the man from Bodie who destroys the town of Hard Times, is about the baddest badman on record and Henry Fonda the most solid and blank-eyed good guy around, but it's hard times indeed for all involved.

"Incident at Phantom Hill," the week's other Western, has Dan Duryea as its badman and not much beyond him except the usual thievin' Rebs, raidin' Indians and stolen Government gold nonsense with enough action to keep things moving and muddled.

Cyd Charisse's marvelous long legs are the best moving objects in "Party Girl," a throwback to the gangster movies of the Thirties that boasts none of their energy or timeliness. It's an attempt at caricature, perhaps, but the result is dull and unsatisfying, with only those Charisse legs and Lee J. Cobb's offbeat portrait of a gangster worth watching.

The horses are about all that's worth watching in "Wall of Noise," one of those routine sports stories in which the dumb animals manage to show up the humans—dramatically as well as morally. A behind-the-grandstands drama about a young race-horse trainer who gets all involved with wicked women and double-dealing men but winds up with his true loves (i.e. horse and girl), this one gets lost in the stretch. But there are some fine bits of race-track atmosphere and the big climactic race is an exciting and well-produced one. It's worth a bet—a small one.

for Christmas.

It is a membership card in the California State Automobile Association. The card is one of the things that comes in the CSAA membership portfolio, which we send gift-wrapped for Christmas.

For anyone who's ever been helpless on a highway, or ever had to be towed to a service garage, or even ran out of gas or gotten lost somewhere, it's a thoughtful gift.

It's a thoughtful gift for anyone who drives, period.

For $15* the club gives emergency road service, helps with traffic violations, helps plan vacations, handles every detail of travel abroad, recommends motels, guarantees reservations and rates, provides road maps and tour guides, protects from over charges on auto repair bills, makes available the best car insurance in the business, and sends a magazine every month.

How can we afford to give so much for so little? We're a nonprofit organization. One of 238 affiliated AAA clubs in the United States and Canada, serving more than 11 million members.

If you'd like to get this gift for somebody (even yourself) phone or drop by the CSAA office nearest you.

Never have you given so much for so little.

*CSAA dues are $18 for the first year (includes $3 enrollment fee) and $15 a year after that.

CALIFORNIA STATE AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION (WE'RE THE AAA IN NORTHERN AND CENTRAL CALIFORNIA, AND NEVADA). CHECK THE WHITE PAGES OF YOUR PHONE BOOK UNDER "AAA CALIF. STATE AUTO ASSN."

LETTERS

Correspondence for this department should be addressed to Letters Department, TV GUIDE, Radnor, Pa., 19088. All letters must be signed. Names withheld upon request.

VIEWER SERVICE

If you wish to write comments to those in charge of a specific show, you should send your letters to: (Name of Show), TV GUIDE Viewer Service, Box 800, Radnor, Pa., 19088. These letters will be forwarded to proper executives.

A MOTHER'S THANKS

I just received a letter from my son who is at Dak To, Vietnam, with the 173rd Airborne Brigade, telling about taking cover at the airstrip during a mortar attack. He said that in the shelter with him were three CBS newsmen, one of them Robert Schakne whom we watch on Walter Cronkite's program. It dawned on me after reading the letter that these newsmen don't get much praise or thanks from the public for covering the war over there and keeping us parents informed about our sons. I just want to say many, many thanks to all the newsmen and photographers.

Mrs. Charles Morehead
Albemarle, N.C.

ABOUT THANKSGIVING

Everyone likes a parade and everyone likes to hear the band music, so why didn't the men and women covering or reporting the parades on Thanksgiving Day stop gabbering long enough so we could hear more of the band music? Lorne Greene and Betty White, reporting Macy's Parade, seemed to enjoy drowning out the music. Bess Myerson, on another network, hardly ever stopped talking. I switched from one network to the other to get most of the band music, but both networks were the same, all mouth and very little music.

E. T. Bucklew
Clarksburg, W.Va.

I have a complaint about the holiday TV shows. Take Thanksgiving for example. The woman of the house slaves over the hot stove preparing dinner for the family. While she is working, the man of the house sits down to enjoy a good football game. This is all right, because it keeps him out of the kitchen. After dinner, while the wife is cleaning up the dishes, the man of the house again sits to watch a football game. Why don't the networks, for once, have a movie for the women while the men clean up?

THE REASON WHY

Last week's TV GUIDE announced a Carol Channing special for Thursday at 8 P.M. on ABC. We turned on our set to watch the show, but it was not on. This evening (Sun., Nov. 19) we were all set to watch the Debbie Reynolds special at 7 P.M. on ABC as announced in the TV GUIDE. Again we were disappointed. We have subscribed to your magazine for a number of years and have come to depend on it to make good use of our television. And now, two bloopers in less than a week. What has happened?

Mrs. Warren Broker
Elgin, Ill.

[What happened was that the ABC network, at that time hampered by a strike, could not telecast either show. ABC delayed announcing this past TV GUIDE's deadline in the hope the strike would be settled. It wasn't.—Ed.]

7 7 11 13 MR. DICKINS OF LONDON—Fantasy

SPECIAL COLOR Sir Michael Redgrave is Charles Dickens for one fanciful hour. In Dickens' home, a tour guide (played by Juliet Mills) meets Dickens' ghost, who finds that little remains of his 19th-century London. To compensate for the passing years, Dickens takes us back in time on a merry chase through the pages of his books, including his Christmas tale "The Seven Poor Travellers." Director: Barry Morse—better known as "The Fugitive's" Lieutenant Gerard. (60 min.)

"Garrison's Gorillas" will not be seen. Scenes from this special are on page 12.

9 FRENCH CHEF—Cooking

19 MOVIE—Drama

"Don't Knock the Rock." (1956) A top rock 'n' roll singer tries to make his music more acceptable to the older generation. Bill Haley, Alan Dale, Alan Freed, Patricia Hardy. (Two hours)

8:00 2 BURKE'S LAW—Mystery

A Hollywood press agent is murdered at his wedding reception, and his three ex-wives are at the top of Burke's suspect list. In cameo roles are Herschel Bernardi (McCoy) and episode director Don Taylor (George Hogarth). Burke: Gene Barry. Mia Bandini: Luciana Paluzzi. (60 min.)

3 4 JERRY LEWIS—Variety

COLOR Guests: Imogene Coca and Richard Kiley, formerly Broadway's "Man of La Mancha." Sketches: Jerry plays an apprentice crook who steals a broken-down jalopy for getaways, and a fearless Mountie sent to rescue the commander's daughter (Imogene) from a poacher (Richard). (60 min.)

Excitement? You bet. Someone's coming to visit. A neighbor bringing exciting things Mommy wants . . . extra-concentrated household cleaners and laundry products, an aerosol shoeshine you apply with your shoes on, rebuffable floor wax . . . things to make Mommy lovelier, and even bubble bath specially made for Junior. More important, this neighbor is an Independent Amway Distributor who gives Mommy lots of help and hints . . . that's what we call "Amway home care know-how at your doorstep." See phone book, or Yellow Pages "Cleaning Products," or write:

Now Possible To Shrink Hemorrhoids Stop Itching and Relieve Pain IN MOST CASES.

Science has found a medication with the ability, in most cases—to stop burning itch, relieve pain and actually shrink hemorrhoids. Tests by doctors proved in case after case, while gently relieving pain and itching, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

The answer is Preparation H®. There is no other formula like it for the treatment of hemorrhoids. Preparation H also soothes inflamed, irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.

Naturalist John Muir

SPECIAL COLOR "After years spent in the heart of it . . . it seems to me above all others to be the Range of Light, the most divinely beautiful of all the mountain chains I've seen." So wrote explorer-naturalist John Muir (1838-1914) about the Sierra Nevada Mountains of Northern California. He spent more than half his life traveling these mountains and working for their preservation as a national park.

Muir's own writings provide much of the narration for this journey that follows the 212-mile John Muir Trail from its start on the floor of the Yosemite Valley to its end at the summit of Mount Whitney.

Peabody and Emmy award winning writer-producer Bob Anderson ("No Deposit, No Return") and cameraman Al Kihn spent over a year filming to capture the mood of the mountains in all seasons.

SUBDUE®: FOR SHEER BEAUTY FROM HEAD-TO-TOE

Mrs. West of the Zucchini Patch

That ultrasophisticate of TV and movies, Eve Arden, is at home down on the farm

“What kind of mother is she?” I asked Duncan, who is 14 and a young man of some discernment.

“Beastly,” he said.

“She’s overprotective,” Doug (13), loitering near-by, volunteered.

“You’ll need protection if you don’t get a haircut,” Eve (mother) Arden threatened, cutting the discussion off at the ankles and sending the rebels on a fast withdrawal out of the room.

I peered at the legendary lady of screen and tube from my post on a white couch within the womb of Westhaven, the countrified digs of Eve and her actor husband, Brooks West. Eve, who has returned to TV this season with The Mothers-in-Law, sat down on the couch across from me and peered back: big, uncertain eyes; perfect makeup; short, neatly coiffed hair. She wore housewifey blue slacks, but the collar of her blouse flared up and out, a hangover from the movie days when she played Joan Crawford’s witty, crisp-tailored best friend.

Yet she really has little in common with that image, or with Hollywood at large, for that matter. Thirteen years ago she and Brooks bought the farm, 38 acres of California sage, a badminton court, a Japanese garden and a back yard full of prize zucchini. It sprawls off a silent two-lane highway, amid eucalyptus shade and quiet, offering enough privacy for even one so private as Eve Arden. They have used it: to paint several hundred pictures, to raise four children (including the older girls, Connie and Liza), to go bicycling when the mood strikes; in short, to enjoy life.

Inside the main house (there are also guest and caretaker quarters) it is unfarmlike elegant. Not a hoe-length from where we sat was the entrance to what the Wests call the bordello bedroom, a chamber graced by a Victorian brass bed. To the north, up another level, stood the French bakery cart; and beyond, a collection of antiquey items.

In gloomy moments Eve will threaten to give up acting to become an interior decorator. It is the kind of mood that is probably typical of her, in that she is abnormally modest and prone to periods of extreme self-doubt. This is the woman who is called “Maybe the bes’ comedienne in Hollywood” by Mothers-in-Law producer-director Desi Arnaz, ex-husband and former co-star of Lucille Ball in I Love Lucy.

Lucy went on to become a comedy fixture in Hollywood, millionairess and lady tycoon. After Our Miss Brooks ended in 1956, Eve went back to her farm and kids. She came out again the next year for The Eve Arden Show, in which she played a lady novelist and wished she hadn’t. →

In the next 10 years she did a little of this and a little of that: road shows ("Hello, Dolly"), movies ("Dark at the Top of the Stairs"), Las Vegas and two unsold pilots. But nothing really jelled.

She says that the best roles were going to others: "By the time I got there to convince them I was not just Connie Brooks, the part went to somebody else. Sometimes I wondered whether there was a place for me."

In 1962 she and Brooks, an amiable, bearded fellow who frequently does summer stock with his wife, gathered the brood and took off for two years in Europe. With hardly any encouragement at all she gets out the photo album from the trip. Doug and Duncan gather around.

"The day we left, the Mexican couple were crying and Connie was crying and it was raining. Duncan was sulking, Douglas got hysterical and tried to jump out of the car. 'I'm homesick already,' he said, and we weren't even out of the gate yet."

She turns the pages of the album.

"Our Villa!", reads the caption beneath the Portofino digs that prompt one to think maybe she didn't do as badly from her sale of Our Miss Brooks residuals as she would like you to believe.

The stories flow. London, Vienna, Italy. Both of them were painting everything in sight. The house is lined with efforts from that period. This, says Eve, is what she loves—more than acting.

She's writing a book about it even; she mentions later while we walk up the hillside by the Japanese garden complete with motor-driven stream. She talks about the boys, as usual. She frets about jealousy between them. Her mind jumps east to daughter Connie, who is getting married.

But what connection did this thoughtful family woman have with that other lady of TV and movies? The one who is always putting her hand on her hip, looking with devastating calm off-stage and dropping a punch line: "As I said when crawling out of my Murphy bed, some days it doesn't pay to get out of the wall."

She grew up in Mill Valley, across the bay from San Francisco. Her father died when she was 5. Her mother had been an actress. "She was very beautiful," Eve says. "I lost five years with a psychiatrist because of not being as beautiful as she."

She was an only child and very much regretted not having brothers and sisters around. She would have a big family when she grew up. Gale Gordon, her co-star in Our Miss Brooks, recalls Eve confiding her ambition to him once: "I'm going to have 12 children." And in a way she has surpassed that goal, having supported assorted Chinese, Korean, Italian and Vietnamese youths through foster-parent programs. Three of her children are adopted. "Somehow I never thought I'd have a child of my own." And then she got pregnant with Doug.

Her present life at the farm, when not working, is just about exactly as she would like it to be. On a recent day her list of things to do ran like this: "Find orthodontist for Dunc. New dentist for Douglas. Take fish from the pond. Take boys to Little League. Brooks dig trench." She has few close friends, among them Dick Crenna, Barbara Jo Allen (Vera Vague from Fred Allen's show) and Margie Henderson, her costumer of 10 years.

Fortunately for the image, the world does not see Eve Arden as one of the last great zucchini farmers. She is still a power in TV. Desi Arnaz acknowledges that her presence went a long way toward selling The Mothers-in-Law in the first place. The only question was, how would Eve take to such "Lucy-ish" slapstickery? As a kind of initiation rite, Bob Carroll Jr., who writes Mothers with partner Madelyn (Pugh) Davis, wrote a scene in which she wears, quite literally, a hatful of meatballs. "She not only put it on," he recalls happily, "she kept it on longer than expected."

And what about Eve sharing the laughs with another comedienne, Kaye Ballard? "At first," says one hackle expert, "they eyed each other like a couple of stray dogs. There might have even been a few hackles up. But they seem to complement each other and are good friends now."

It is a friendship of opposites. Late last summer on a promotional tour, Miss Ballard, very much the outgoing Italian she plays on the show, gathered pals like popcorn in every city, while Eve, it is said, "came in quiet and left quiet. She doesn't like to sit down with strangers."

"It is excruciating for Eve to do those talk shows," admits manager Glenn Rose. "Give her the script and the dialog. Her sense of humor is private. She is a shy person."

Yet it is acknowledged that right after Desi on the Mothers chain of command comes Eve. Tiny Deborah Walley, who plays her daughter, says: "There's an air about her. If she suggests something, you'll do your damndest to do it. She's a little like a queen and I'm afraid of her and the same goes for everybody."

True to the code of the brooding comic, Eve cruises to the deeps on occasion. While there, a metaphysical work called "Letters of the Scattered Brotherhood" helps to sustain her. In that mood she will sometimes shed for the moment the almost impenetrable, somehow impersonal good will in which she cloaks herself and her feelings. "Other people's unhappiness disturbs me," she will say. "Destruction and waste disturb me. I can't understand why man does it to himself."

And she will regret the way her own career has submerged her husband's: "I saw it coming," she will say, "and I guess it was selfish of me. But there was so much to be done at the farm. Somebody had to be there."

Just before I left Westhaven that day, Eve got on the subject of her four months in Chicago with a "Hello, Dolly" road company last year. "I'd wake up every morning thinking, 'I'll never make it.' My knee was swollen up like a football, but I'd make it out of bed and to the theater, change costume. Then I'd hear the music and climb up the stairs [she pantomimes dragging up the stairs] and just before curtain I'd get into place [she throws her arms open] and"

Right before my eyes Mom became Eve Arden, and I still wonder how it happens.

Barbara Feldon (Agent 99 on Get Smart) has very pretty dark hair—her own and other people's. That is to say, she is owner of a wig and seven wiglets and falls—hairpieces that attach to the wearer's real hair, adding more hair and a different effect. The wig business began in the early days of Get Smart, when Miss Feldon had short hair and the character called for a more hirsute girl. Now that her real hair is long enough, Barbara rarely wears the wig on camera, but does occasionally wear it in her private life. (The wig is, however, sometimes worn by a stand-in or double when the show is being taped.) The wiglets, on the other hand, are really an enhancement—on the order of false eyelashes and other female makeup devices—and as such not considered really a falsification. These Barbara wears with some frequency. Pictured below is Miss Feldon with some of her hairy little helpers, which are mounted on little blockheads created expressly for them. The full wig is second from the young lady's left. The rest of the assortment, from precise Sassoon to disheveled Mixmaster, are her heady array of wiglets and falls.

HIZZONER WOVS 'EM

Mayor Sam Yorty's free-wheeling show is the talk of the town

By Dwight Whitney

It is 20 minutes before taping time for The Sam Yorty Show. Mayor Samuel W. Yorty, that is. Of Los Angeles. Pop. 2,700,000. Third largest city in the U.S. Internationally known center of commerce, industry, movies, palm trees and smog. Here comes the mayor now. Making his way through a group of distinguished jurists, civic leaders and captains of industry, is he? Not at all. The hallway just off tiny Studio 2 at KHJ Channel 9 is jammed with show-biz and sporting figures. Also press agents, producers, newsmen, hangers-on, favor-seekers and just plain rubberneckers.

There's Buddy Ebsen. Good old Buddy. Got his white cowboy hat and scuffed boots on—and his little old horse fiddle (that's a one-string bass made out of an oil drum) just in case Hizzoner asks him to play it.

Muhammad Ali is taking most of the attention though. He is surrounded by newsmen and a guy with lights and a hand-held camera, and is saying into a microphone, "Now I think the toughest boys in the tournament are going to be . . ." Danny Thomas, who joined the group, waits him out, then salaams elaborately. "Muhammad Ali!!" he cries. Then Paula Wayne (she is blonde and petite with a green mini-skirt and a short haircut) steps up. "You know Miss Wayne, Muhammad?" says Thomas. "She was with Sammy in 'Golden Boy.'"

"Oh, sure. Hello, Twiggy," says Muhammad idly.

In the background hover the mayor's other guests, young Sister Germaine, the "American Singing Nun," and Governor Reagan's man in Los Angeles, a politician named J. William Orozco. The mayor says he hopes the show goes smoothly because he has to go into the hospital later that evening for minor surgery. "It's going to be a great show though," says His Honor.

The mayor began his TV series, an hour and a half of chatter with the great, near-great and would-be-great, at 7:30 every Sunday night, last March. (It now is a 60-minute show at 9:30.) He did so over the earnest dissuasion of almost everybody, politicians, friends and professional broadcasters. Six out of seven Los Angeles stations turned it down because it was "undignified," because there were "political complications" or simply because "it had never been done."

The mayor soon proved them wrong. He put on everybody from Ron Karenga, the Black Power advocate, to Mamie Van Doren to ex-King Peter of Yugoslavia. He traded quips with Walter O'Malley, the baseball magnate, tussled with Pierre Salinger over Bobby Kennedy's "making political capital out of Vietnam," listened forbearingly as John (Duke) Wayne defended the late Senator McCarthy, and argued capital punishment with Clinton Duffy, onetime warden of San Quentin. The whole pastiche he liberally salted with politics.

To everyone's surprise he took third rating (ARB) in his time spot (a 9 to Disney's 14 and Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea's 12) and the distinction of being KHJ-TV's highest rated show any time day or night. He got fan letters from Mayor Lindsay of New York and Mayor Cavanagh of Detroit; and at least two mayors, Byrne of St. Paul and Naftalin of Minneapolis, said they were tempted to try the same stunt themselves. Lindsay, in fact, recently launched his own version of The Yorty Show—on WNEW, New York.

But now—show time! The studio is not much bigger than a City Hall broom closet, platform at one end, benches at the other. The studio audience overflows the benches. On the platform, a desk, chairs, a potted palm, a pointer and a map of Israel. The mayor, dapper in gray silk suit and tie, sits at the desk, beaming. A make-up man in a yellow shirt keeps dabbing away at his smiling Irish pan. His producer who doubles as his announcer-host, a jovial Irishman named Jack Rourke, who once in the early days of TV himself performed, warms up the audience.

Then the tape rolls and Rourke brings on His Honor. The introduction for this show, taped during the summer, leans heavily on the mayor's travels, a controversial issue in Southern California (the mayor had just returned from one of many trips for which he has undergone severe press criticism), thereby setting up His Honor's opening line. "I thought for a minute, Jack," says the star of The Sam Yorty Show, "that I was reading the Los Angeles Times," and he is off on his favorite tack, lambasting → publisher Otis Chandler. "I see that Otis was a member of the Bobby Kennedy [another mayoral bête noir] rapids-shooting party," says the mayor wickedly, "no doubt while writing an editorial criticizing me for traveling."

So much for politics. On to the mayor's star-studded guest list. Here's Danny Thomas. The mayor craftily tries to draw him in on the Times-Kennedy discussion without success. Thomas prefers brotherly love. "Our house," says Thomas, "is loaded with love. It knows no bigotry." The mayor parries with his view of brotherly love in Israel. Tears come to the eyes of the little old lady in the front row.

The mayor is really rolling now. The grass roots have never taken such a pummeling. The Nebraska boy rubbing elbows with the show-business elite. Beautiful! Even Harry Truman and his piano never had it so good. Miss Wayne is overcome. "It is such a pleasure," she gushes, "to be with our wonderful, wonderful mayor."

At the commercial, Muhammad Ali whispers audibly: "Mayor, you going to run Johnny Carson right out of business."

Here's old Buddy and his horse fiddle playing "Big Noise from Winnetka" mixed in with the old plugola for the movies he's moonlighting. Here's His Honor's "surprise guest," Muhammad, a fellow "surrounded by controversy." The mayor is fearless; he doesn't mind swinging on Muhammad. "You're such a tiger in the ring, Muhammad, frankly I can't understand why you would object to fighting for your country." Muhammad is ready for him. "Maybe I could carry your suitcase next time you leave the country, Mayor?"

And here at last is the pièce de résistance, the Yorty "Editorial." The mayor takes them on a guided tour of Jerusalem which is as countrified and piquant as the potatoes and onions fried in lard he used to have for dinner back in Nebraska. Not since Fiorello La Guardia read the funnies to the children on Sunday morning radio has there been anything like it. And the applause is deafening.

Half an hour later His Honor is sitting in Martoni's, his favorite Italian restaurant, telling all about it.

"I love television," His Honor says. "Without it I would not be mayor," a reference to his giant-killing TV campaign of 1961 in which he upset the Los Angeles Times-backed candidate, the incumbent Mayor Norris Poulson, by going directly to the people.

"When I did the telethon for the gubernatorial primary in the campaign against Pat Brown [the primary in which Yorty very nearly up-ended the then-governor], Jack Rourke was the producer. Jack persuaded me to do this show. It was dangerous, of course. If I'd flopped, my enemies never would have let me forget it. I was on a political spot. But it has advantages. When the Times takes me on, I have a way to answer back. It's not a one-way street any more."

The mayor is no stranger to TV. He is a favorite Johnny Carson guest —three times. "Johnny and I have a ball. Once I wheeled him out in an ash can." Also Merv Griffin, Joey Bishop, Mike Douglas, What's My Line? and Face the Nation. "TV, it's beautiful. You're back to the old New England Town Meeting. I wouldn't want to be in politics without it."

There is a pause. The hospital is calling; he was due there for his "minor surgery" an hour ago. But the mayor is still eating and talking. And they are the best things in life. "Tell them I'll be there in a minute," he says. "You know, this Marshall McLuhan, the fellow who says the medium is the message? People don't understand that, and I can't understand why."

"The medium is the message," he says, and is off into the night.

JONATHAN WINTERS isn't taking any chances on his new CBS series getting off to a bad start. His first show, Dec. 27, has RED SKELTON and BARBARA EDEN as guests; the second features the SMOTHERS BROTHERS, and CAROL BURNETT cuts up on the third . . . DAVID NIVEN is the subject of a Portrait personal documentary being syndicated by Four Star International, a company in which he's also a big stockholder.

ABC dragged "Arsenic and Old Lace" out of the closet as a special for BORIS KARLOFF (who appeared in it on Broadway years ago), HELEN HAYES and LILLIAN GISH . . . ABC also has "A Hatful of Rain" for PETER FALK, MICHAEL PARKS, HERSCHEL BERNARDI and SANDY DENNIS . . . Speaking of specials, some network planners put out feelers for a FRANK SINATRA hour with THE BEATLES . . . Producer GEORGE SCHAEFER signed JANE WYATT (Father Knows Best) to star with RALPH BELLAMY in "My Father and My Mother," a ROBERT CREAN teleplay for CBS Playhouse . . . CBS also hired GORE VIDAL to write a Playhouse production for next year.

SEAN GARRISON (Dundee and The Culhane) and NICO MINARDOS play auto-racing drivers in "The Big Prize," a two-hour TV movie which might become a series . . . And in Paris, SENTA BERGER boards "The Big Train," a two-hour NBC film with GENE BARRY and JOHN SAXON . . . The BING CROSBY Golf Hall of Fame is dedicated Jan. 13 at the crooner's annual ABC tournament from Pebble Beach, Cal.

VAN WILLIAMS, who buzzed the screen last season as The Green Hornet, is trying for another series. He's in a Big Valley episode entitled "Silver Badge," which may become a regular show . . . MICHAEL CALLAN, ex-husband of Occasional Wife, has a part in ABC's "Kiss Me, Kate," the ROBERT GOULET-CAROL LAWRENCE special for spring.

Former series stars are all over the entertainment field. PATRICIA CROWLEY (Please Don't Eat the Daisies) starred recently in a WALT DISNEY TV show called "Boomerang, Dog of Many Talents"; JACKIE COOGAN (The Addams Family) plays a vaudeville comic in a segment of The Outsider, a new series starring DARREN McGAVIN; BURT REYNOLDS, ex-Hawk, did an FBI while making plans to build a legitimate theater in Florida; LEE J. COBB (The Virginian) portrays a detective in "Coo-gan's Bluff," a theatrical film.

MIKE KELLIN, Chief Petty Officer Willie Miller aboard The Wackiest Ship in the Army, has recorded an album of his own songs called "The Testimony's Still Coming In" . . . JOEY BISHOP's announcer on his late-night show, REGIS PHILBIN, has a Cowboy in Africa part . . . There's an NBC summer show in the works for singer AL MARTINO . . . The LENNON SISTERS are cutting down their appearances on The Lawrence Welk Show to take other offers.

THE CAROL BURNETT SHOW

by Cleveland Amory

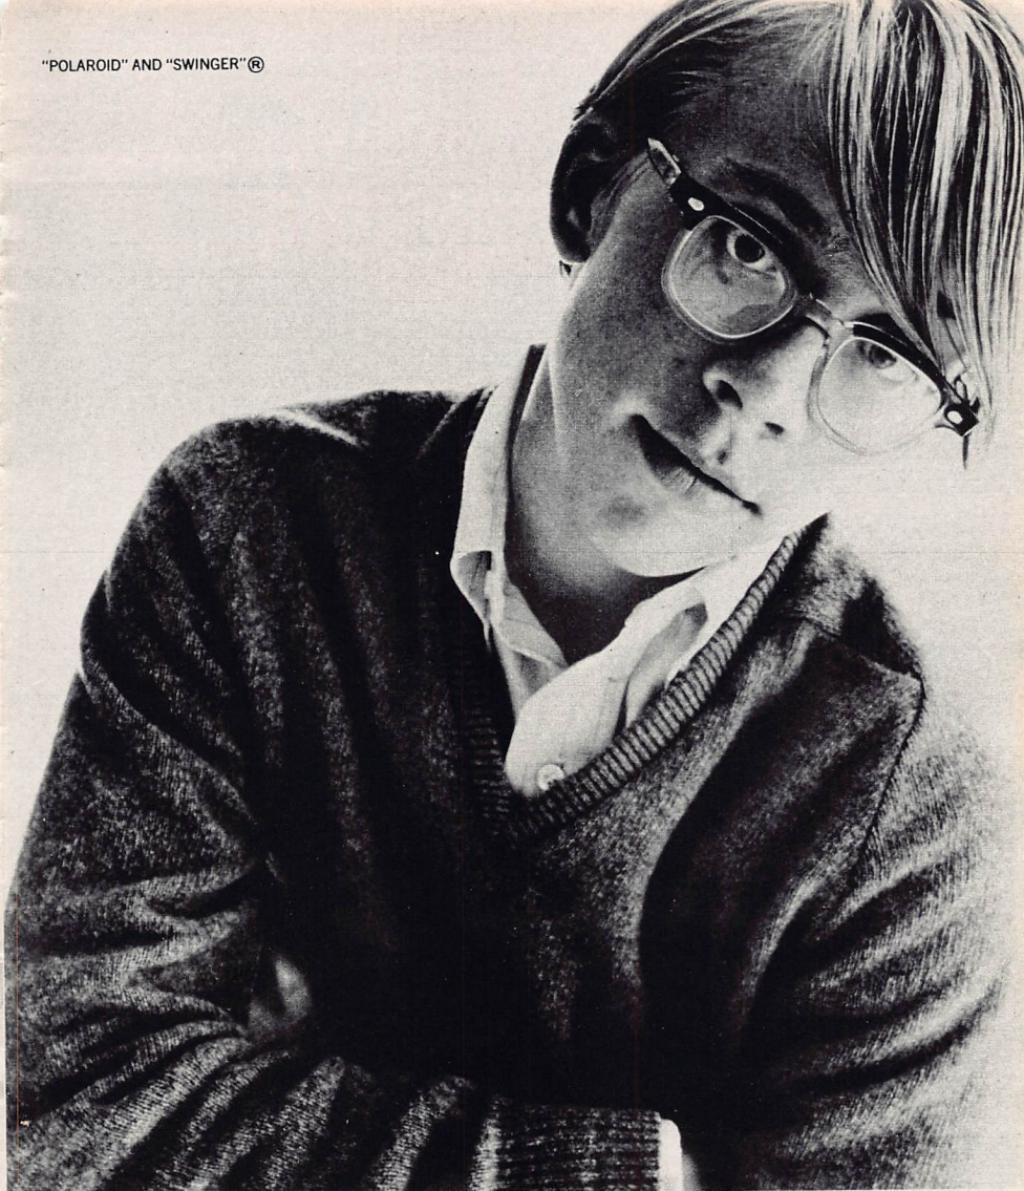

Miss Burnett is an odd choice for an emcee. In the first place, a little of her goes a long way, and a lot of her—her muggings, tongue-outs, etc.—often goes the wrong way. In the second place, she's not a stand-up comedienne—perilous enough for an emcee choice; she's an outright outrageous clown. In the third place, she's at her very best when she's just herself—she is obviously a very nice person—yet she gives us so little of this that it's positively infuriating. We see her this way in the brief show-opening exchanges with her audience, and even here so many of her answers are so transparently plotted and planned, with endless jokes about her measurements, the handsomeness of her announcer, etc.—that it just isn't enough. Please, dear Carol, be dear Carol.

Then there is the matter of the sketches. In every show we have seen so far, there has been at least one which, even in the Christmas season, we cannot forgive. In one, for example, Carol played "Luci Brains" being interviewed by "F. Lee Korman," with such offensive lines as "Mah daddy's real busy, but he sends Hubert Humphrey down to play with the baby." In another she played "The International Mother of the Month," complete with septuplets—one sketch which never even began to be anything except embarrassing. In still another, satirizing "Metro-Golden-Mouth," she played "Scarlet O'Fever" to Dick Chamberlain's Rhett Butler, and the whole thing was so overdone that it ended up a kind of satire which—well, just sat there. But a show with Nanette Fabray really took the cake. Here were two sketches—one about an ugly secretary versus a pretty secretary and the other about foreign airlines—both of which were so equally overdone that they ended in a dead heat between unfunniness and tastelessness.

Once over these humps, however, there are fine things about The Carol Burnett Show. The gimmicks, like the autograph-book closing, are fresh and good; announcer Lyle Waggoner is fun; and so, as Carol's look-alike younger sister, is Vicki Lawrence. Then, too, there has been some fine singing. If Sonny and Cher were disappointing—liked Cher, hated him—one singer, Gloria Loring, was terrific, easily the best new singer we've seen. And finally, besides the bad sketches, there have been some wonderful ones. Best of all was Tim Conway satirizing a newsman whose "news machine" has broken down: "In the meantime . . . huh, huh . . . excuse me . . . Oh, well here are some sports scores . . . 2-4, 3-5, 8-2. . . . Oh, 8-2 is a final." Another memorable sketch was one in which Kay Medford played Carol's sister-in-law. In this, Miss Medford was so superb that we would forget, and try once more to forgive, everything we haven't liked. In other words, all this show needs is more Miss Medfords and Miss Lorings and Mr. Conways—and more Carol being Carol.
